A Note from the Directors

Since we started Hands In! each show presented unique challenges. With each one I knew we were on the cusp of something great. During Polliwog Prince we experienced many changes. I began interpreting full time, and the better half of Hands In! moved away. This show has had more challenges than most, but that is how I know there's greatness here. Time after time we face challenges, overcome them and come out stronger. This cast exemplifies that. They have come farther than any other cast I've worked with and that is a testament to their dedication. I don't know how we continue to be lucky enough to find the exact people we need time and time again, but I consider myself blessed to continue to be a part of the magic.

Thank you all for your continued support. I'm humbled by how many people want to see our stories. Whether it's your first Hands In! show or your fifth, know that your support is invaluable. We simply could not do this without all of you. Each person you will see tonight has a different story, and different journey with ASL. These colorful characters make up the beautiful rainbow that is our community. Enjoy.

-AMARA EDE, DIRECTOR

This show has been a show of tremendous progress. The show you see tonight is not the show it was three months ago or even three weeks ago. Each of these actors has worked extremely hard to bring you a show that anyone in the audience can enjoy and be a part of. I am proud to have worked with each colorful member of our Bichrome Kingdom, let alone proud to know them in general. Alas, here I am, prattling like a polliwog! I believe their work speaks for itself, so please enjoy the show!

-HALEY BEACH, ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR

This show has been such an amazing one to work for! I've had the pleasure of working with my amazing directors and friends Amara and Haley to make this show happen. I'm super proud of the show that is about to be presented! These actors have worked hard to make this Hands In show possible. Thank you to the parents, families, and friends that came out to see this production! We might have found a few frogs along the way, but we got our prince! Please enjoy the show!
